His reputation and knowledge in club fitting and building and how he incorporates this knowledge into his teaching style is remarkable and informative.

"My teaching philosophy is built around teaching the basic swing fundamentals and how they fit into individual's golf swings. I combine proper club fitting into the teaching process to give my students the best possible information on swing and golf equipment improvements. I strongly believe in teaching individuals not methods, no two golf swings are the same.

My lesson program is unique, it will enlighten the golfer about the simplicity of their golf swing, and how improving simple fundamentals will improve their golf game. The programs concentrates on all parts of the game, including using the driver, irons, putting, and emphasis on the importance of practicing short game techniques. I focus on making golf fun, and all my students truly enjoy my lessons and teaching techniques'."
